

Comelec drops 15 more party-list groups

By Jocelyn K. Uy

A GROUP of former prisoners led by ex-convict Rufus Jafaja Jr. and an organization formerly represented by fugitive retired Maj. Gen. Jovito Salazar were among the 15 party-list groups that the Commission on Elections (Comelec) yesterday dis-qualified from next year's balloting. The Comelec decision brought to 70 the number of groups it had so far dropped from the list of organizations qualified to take part in the national elections in May. At a press conference, Comelec

Chairman Belarmino Jr. announced that the panel body had cancelled the accreditation of Kapitan ng mga Melanchon ng Waking Salas (Kawing) and Bantay. Kaban, which identifies Jafaja, a former Zamboanga del Norte representative convicted of raping a woman, as its president and chair- woman, is supposed to represent the innocent who continue to lose rights to polls and those who have already served their sentences. Gathering 234,789 votes in the 2010 elections, Kaban carried a COMELEC 1/11

PH has a new cardinal

Pope surprises Archbishop Tagle

By Philip C. Tobias

POPE Benedict XVI has added Manila Archbishop Luis Antonio Tagle and five other prelates to the ranks of cardinals who will elect his successor.

Benedict made the surprise announcement during his weekly general audience in the Vatican yesterday and said the new cardinals would be elected at a conclave on Nov. 24. The nominations help even out the geographic distribution of cardinals, which had tilted heavily toward Italy, according to the Associated Press.

Aside from Tagle, the other new cardinals are Mgts. James Harvey of the American prelate of the Pope's household; Archbishop of Abuja, Nigeria, John Oluwalanle Oluwalanle; Archbishop of Bogota, Colombia, Ruben Salazar Gomez; Patriarch of Antioch of the Maronites in Lebanon Bechara Boutros Rai; and the Major Archbishop of the Vicarinate of the San-Mateo-Archdiocese in India Basilio Chinnaiyan Thattai.

Tagle becomes the Philippine's seventh cardinal, following Cardinal Gaudencio Rosales, Jose Sanchez, Ricardo Vidal, Jaime Sin, Julio Francisco and Rufino Santos.

Tagle, 50, is currently in Rome for the second of his trips as the apostolic nuncio to the new evangelization. While his fellow Philippine bishops did not vote for Tagle as one of their representatives to the synod, the Pope named him a synod, the Pope named him a

Malversation rap vs GMA dismissed

THE OFFICE of the Ombudsman has dismissed for lack of evidence charges against former President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo in connection with the alleged diversion of more than 7500 million pesos for overseas Filipino workers (OFWs) in her election campaign in 2004. A 40-page memorandum and an 11-page supplemental memorandum issued by a panel of investigators and approved by Ombudsman Conchita Carpio

Morales found no sufficient evidence against Arroyo, now a Pangasinan representative, and 11 other officials of her administration.

The two charges of technical malversation allegedly using funds of the Overseas Workers Welfare Administration (OWWA) were recommended by the Department of Justice (DOJ).

By Michael Lin Uric

CANBERRA, Australia (via PLDT)—The Australian government headed by Prime Minister Julia Gillard on Wednesday joined the Philippines and New Zealand in seeking the adoption of a joint code of conduct for the West Philippine Sea (South China Sea) to prevent rival territorial claims in the area from leading to armed confrontation.

Gillard congratulated President Aquino, who arrived here Tuesday night for a three-day state visit, for his administration's signing a preliminary peace agreement with Muslim insurgents in Mindanao.

Mc Aquino and Gillard had a bilateral meeting and Philippine and Australian ministers had an expanded bilateral meeting on Wednesday. Both meetings were held in Parliament House.

Australian officials said they were in Manila for the West Philippine Sea, where the Philippines, Vietnam, Brunei, Malaysia and Taiwan dispute

Kapunan jailers face contempt

By Richard B. Malina

THE ANTIPOLO Regional Trial Court (RTC) is expected to issue another order today compelling the Philippine Army to transfer retired Lt. Col. Eduardo "Red" Kapunan Jr. from Fort Bonifacio in Taguig City where he is currently detained to a civilian detention center.

Antipolo RTC Judge 96 Judge Mt. Corrao-Gonzales yesterday also issued a show cause order to the Philippine Army to why Kapunan's continued detention is not in the public interest. Kapunan was ordered to return to his home in Manila to his wife and children over his being in a show cause order.

Another place of detention being considered is the detention center of the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI).

Antipolo yesterday issued a show cause order to the NBI, who confirmed they can accommodate Kapunan in its detention facility in Manila.

Justice Amos, the NBI's office is charged for its legal officers, said the court that the NBI detention center has adequate security, to ensure Kapunan's safety and the safety of the public.

Binay urges Israel to buy more products from PH

By Sara Quiambao

VICE President Jejomar Binay on Tuesday encouraged the Israeli government and business community to expand trade with the Philippines, citing prospects for wider agricultural exchanges, including fruit products and industrial goods.

Following his day-long visit to Israel Oct. 23, Binay met with Israeli President Shimon Peres at the Presidential Residence in Jerusalem and exchanged officials to "explore new trade and investment opportunities in the Philippines," he said.

"The Philippines-Israel bilateral trade represents a very small percentage of the overall trade between the two countries, but it has great potential for growth," Binay said.

Binay said he is working with Peres to specifically study a pact for the country's pineapple and coconut products, which are major export items of the country.

"I hope that more Philippine trade products such as pineapples and coconuts would find their way into the mainstream Israeli retail market," he said.

PNP wants cameras in all shops

By Mike Dela Cruz

THE PHILIPPINE National Police (PNP) wants CCTV security systems mandatory in all major supermarkets as a deterrent to crime.

PNP Chief Inspector General Ricardo Balmora said in a statement that he would propose the measure to Interior Secretary Mar Roxas before the National Police and Order Council (NPOC) committee on its next meeting, and monitor the council as it adapts the measure to a nationwide implementation by all local government units (LGUs).

The PNP seeks to replace nationwide local government ordinances that include CCTV as one of the requirements for retail businesses before they are given business licenses and permits to operate.

Balmora said that a "small investment" such as the installation of CCTV would benefit business operators as crimes would be "deterred."

"After all, it makes better business sense to invest on security than suffer the risk," Balmora said.

PNP spokesperson Chief Supt. Genesio Carbo Jr. said that CCTV "improves the security of stores and possessions of external customers, thus, increasing its crime deterrence effect."

Carbo added that LGUs that require its business establishments to install CCTV security systems now have better "peace and order situations."

Junking seen in polls

By GIC C. Cabanogian

DESPITE the hype surrounding the formation of new coalition slates for next year's national elections, candidates admit that political junking will be inevitable.

"One co-candidate in the alliance and coalition, junking of candidates will be inevitable," said Sen. Juan P. Enrile, who is running for senate under the United National Alliance (UNA).

"Candidates will most likely lead for themselves, especially in the LP (Liberal Party) coalition, which has too many parties involved that can not really loyal to each other," said Enrile.

Sen. Enrile said that it was possible that some political parties might endorse their own leaders that might be different from the coalition slates.

Enrile cited as an example the case of the Nacionalista Party's Coalition (NPC), which joined the LP coalition before a meeting. Sen. Lito Lapid, a one of the candidates for his own of 13 members, Congress Rep. Jack Enrile, running under the UNA where his father, Sen. Enrile, is President Juan Ponce Enrile.

is one of three primary sources.

"We are uncertain for candidates to affiliate at the last level to any individual since it is very difficult to monitor," said Enrile.

Malabon Rep. Rocco Sanchez, NPC spokesperson, said: "Our party leaders and members will discuss the matter accordingly once that the filing period has passed and we know where our candidates will stand. Consequently though, we are responsible for all our party candidates from the bottom down the ticket to municipal councilors. We will be supporting all our party candidates."

Pangilinan not running

By Jane Maresca

MANILA—Jorge Pangilinan is not running in the Philippine Olympic Committee elections.

The country's top sports person, asked to challenge POC president Juan "Boyoy" Cojuangco Jr. in the Nov. 30 polls, reportedly announced that he's not ready to assume the position in the local Olympic body.

"After long reflection and considerable thought, I have decided not to run for the POC," Pangilinan said in a statement.

"I have long reflected and considerable thought on the POC's role in the country's sports development, especially the demands on my time which make a position outside, with a heavy heart, I have concluded that now is not the right time for me to join the POC in its executive capacity," said Pangilinan in a statement.

Series of national sports events have been planned for the POC, but Pangilinan is not running.

Representatives from 25 NGOs attended a dinner meeting hosted by the Commission on Sports and Physical Education (ComSPED) on Oct. 15.

Studied by Philippine president and his family and his family, Pangilinan is not running in the POC polls.

"I am truly grateful to all those who expressed their support for my candidacy in the POC. Much appreciated," said Pangilinan.

"I know I will disappoint many of you with this decision, and for this I am truly sorry," said Pangilinan.

POC vice president Marlene Lopez said Pangilinan has enough members in the POC to run for the POC post by himself, especially during the election in Alabang Country Club.

A total of 40 NGOs and athletes representatives—Chapman Marcellino Torres and his wife—attended the Philippine Olympic Committee election in the Philippines. Frank Alonzo will win the polls.

With Pangilinan out of the POC race for good, the group of NGOs clamoring for his election has to scramble to find another standard bearer to replace Pangilinan.

The deadline for filing of candidacy is at noon tomorrow.

PMA CADET EARN MEDAL FOR JEEPNEY HOLDUP HEROICS

Aviles

a rarity

By Marlon Brando

HIS COMBAT medal came quite early, earned in an urban battle he never really trained for.

The Philippine Military Academy (PMA) cadet who was shot and seriously wounded when he tried to chase a jeepney robbery recently in Quezon City earned the Bronze Cross Medal from the Armed Forces of the Philippines on Wednesday for what a general described as "a rare feat among young people."

Carrying swaggy soldiers while still in hospital clothes, Cadet First Class Alfredo Aviles, 23, received the honor two months after visiting out of a coma and with the police yet to identify the man who nearly killed him after taking his PMA ring.

"Despite great threat to the presence of a soldier armed with a 45-cal. pistol, Cadet Aviles demonstrated extraordinary courage and bravery by attempting to disarm the robbers, disregarding his personal safety for that of others," according to the citation read during the simple awarding ceremony at AFP Medical Center in Quezon City.

Aviles, a native of Benguet province, went into a coma after sustaining gunshot wounds in the foot and chest.

He tried to tackle the jeepney robbers at the corner of Rodriguez Street and Casmal Street on Monday at the night of Aug. 25.

To lady's honor

The son of a retired Marine came to the aid of a female stranger whose life was in jeopardy and engaged the robbers in a scuffle. The soldier then shot him twice and later used another his fingertips reaching off.

The cadet was in Manila that day as he was scheduled to serve as a practice for the PMA entrance examination.

"He drove after paying his fee, thank you to reach," Aviles simply said after receiving the medal from PMA superintendent Maj. Gen. Alfredo Peralta Jr. The Bronze Cross Medal is given to civilians or military personnel of the AFP who have risked their lives or shown great heroism in situations not within armed conflict.

"He showed great courage and bravery despite great threat, and for that he brought pride and honor not only to himself but also to the whole school," Peralta said.

"He did an extraordinary feat which is rare among young people like him," said PMA superintendent of cadets Gen. Carlos Quinto, who gave Aviles his new ring as a member of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, replacing the one that was stolen.

According to the cadet's father, retired Master Marlin Igo, Brando stated, his son was still feeling difficulty speaking and communicating but that his overall condition had sharply improved since the incident.

"When he regained consciousness, he im-

Weak evidence does PDEA case in

By Nito Caligo

THE PHILIPPINE Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA) suffered another blow in its fight against drug traffickers after a Pasa judge acquitted yesterday two people the agency accused during an entrapment operation last year.

According to Judge Gregorio Alayon/Judge of the Pasa Regional Trial Court Branch 114, he found the evidence against Hong Young, alias Leila, and Chinese Filipino Carlos Ang too weak to sustain a conviction.

The conflicting testimony given by PDEA and the local police at the time the case, the evidence before the court.

Young's trial came on the heels of the original nearly two weeks ago of Joseph Teano, the third member of the so-called "N-shing Bros," due to the "strong evidence" given by a PDEA agent who testified to court about the wife's arrest in 2008.

convince worth P5 million in a longer lapse on this. 30 days ago, they were charged with violating Section 5 (b) of dangerousness of Republic Act 9165 in the Comprehensive Dangerous Drugs Act of 2002.

Following the arrest of the two men, PDEA had announced that Ang was named by the Chief of State Drug Enforcement Administration and the Philippine National Police-National Regional Office Special Operations Task Force for drug smuggling and importation.

Forbes added: "We are still waiting for him to report his pending physical condition before we can decide to send him back on the PDEA, but we are really hoping that his condition will improve in the new month."

Nothing wrong with wheelchair joke

WHEN you hear President Binay being called President Gloria and her administration, and you remember of a service around that suddenly being played the same before and suddenly after.

It's like when the police on board at a traffic station go to a road block and then suddenly they are gone.

For the 10th time, Pasa made a punching bag out of Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, although without naming her, in a speech before the Philippine community in Auckland, New Zealand.

Why call the President just a name on and in the media divide the lives of Gloria and Binay like a knife?

It's true that Gloria's administration was very corrupt, with some saying it was even more corrupt than that of Ferdinand Marcos.

But must it now keep saying that when every citizen knows about it?

He not only sounds like a broken record, he also sounds like a gagging wife who can't forget her husband's infidelity in the past.

Persons with disabilities (PWDs) should not be offended by the President's joke about some corrupt Filipino during her term, but try to avoid promotion in such by using wheelchair.

This joke took a twist at first when she tried to leave the country on a submarine but was prevented from doing so by immigration authorities.

So what's wrong with that joke since it was not about PWDs?

For the sake of the agency's reputation, it is a good idea to avoid such a joke and to avoid being a laughing stock.

police) himself who came early to the scene to assist him.

As a standard upon the scene, an officer was engaged in reading a newspaper.

The husband returned his wife's eyes with both his hands, and said "Agnes who?"

I had nothing wrong with the joke even if one of my sides aches from a chaff joke.

When you reach a joke, be ready to be laughing with it.

Binay's joke, a lawyer for Binay says in various press cases, reacted to the President's wheelchair joke.

"Singaporeans per-mail me many after calls (they're trying to be funny when he's not talking).

The accused in the alleged murder of Binay Philip Anderson Peralta on board the BRP Basilisa City in 1995 has been named now when the Philippine government announced the case for lack of jurisdiction.

If the judge of a regular court, which is expected to handle the murder case, looks hard at the evidence presented, he will accept the account.

The strong evidence indicates that the victim committed suicide.

Peralta was allegedly depressed because he was being harassed by his parents in a way that he didn't like.

While he was in custody, he was confined at the Southern Command in Zamboanga City for depression, according to records.

Orange peel beef, seared Ahi tuna, dragon wings—new options from a fave pan-Asian bistro

Beef à la Sichuan, Almond & Cashew Chicken, Sweet & Sour Pork and Shrimp with Cantonese Sauce are also among PE Chang's best-selling dishes

By Alex Y. Vargas

ALMOST A YEAR after PE Chang opened its first Southern-style location at Robinson Town Center, people believe the 133 restaurants chain is introducing fresh and bold dishes designed to give diners more options and value for their money.

Michelle Rodriguez, CEO of Global Restaurant Concepts Inc., the company exclusively representing PE Chang in the Philippines, recently launched Flavors of Asia, China and Lunch Menu.

Like the rest of the items on the menu, these three new offerings were developed and approved by the restaurant chain's American owners.

"Our dishes are absolutely inspired by what they serve in the US," said Rodriguez, "everything we do is approved and standardized according to their standards. So, following the formula is the only way to go because their taste has made us full to toes with the brand to begin with."

Pan-Asian Menu

In keeping with PE Chang's positioning as a multinational pan-Asian bistro, the company is introducing Chinese-inspired dishes at its American locations.

The Orange Peel Beef and Southern-style Spicy Beef were inspired by traditional Beijing, respectively. The former is made with prime US Angus beef topped with multi-colored sweet and bitter orange peel, while the latter is PE Chang's version of what is known as the national meat, the restaurant chain's exclusive five-spice rub rub.

Apart from dishes inspired by regional cuisines in China, "Chinese Fireworks" (spicy chicken) influenced by Hunan, Japan, Dragon Wings, for instance, consist of strips of pork ribs chicken wings smothered in a hot, spicy, tangy sauce. Another popular item is Mongolian roast lamb, a Japanese-inspired chicken and beef stir-fry, and a Sichuan-style spicy beef. The latter is a spicy beef stir-fry, a Sichuan-style spicy beef stir-fry, and a Sichuan-style spicy beef stir-fry.

"The only thing we think of is making sure the ingredients, but only if they're quality ingredients. If they're below standard, we won't serve anything less," said Rodriguez.

What about Filipino inspiration? Instead of beef, the design and the team were inspired by their American partners to use Philippine mangoes for the Mango Chicken Chops, one of PE Chang's signature dishes.

PE Chang is also introducing exotic dishes to go with all that food as it launches in China, to introduce visitors of the bistro to the best of the bistro. In this time, Manila is still

Fettuccine with shrimps and fresh basil

EATING HEAVY can sometimes be a challenge, especially when you're craving something healthy like crisp peas or baguette. At a certain age, these are no longer a healthy option and should be considered only as a treat to a diet of whole food.

One evening, while my husband and I were preparing to have dinner, he mentioned two familiar ingredients that we figured would pair for healthy eating: peas and baguette. Thus, I'd have an shrimp pasta in tomato sauce but, instead of the traditional of the dish, I'd serve it with a baguette.

However, in my own kitchen, with no access to the kitchen and the cooking, I can't make this healthy option. And so, I put together the recipe using fresh ingredients and a healthy option. I'll be using olive oil and seasoned with garlic and fresh basil leaves. I turned out to be a very dish, one I'll probably cook again when we're looking to have a quick dinner.

Fettuccine with shrimps and fresh basil
15 minutes
1 baguette
1 cup of olive oil
1 whole head of garlic, chopped
1 lb medium-size shrimps, peeled and deveined

1 lb medium-size shrimps, peeled and deveined
Salt and pepper
